CAUSE AND EFFECT SCIENTIFIC TEXT:

The Coral Reef

Coral reefs can be found in many oceans around the world. They are located in warm, shallow water near coastlines and around islands. Most of the coral reefs can be found in Southeast Asia, near Australia. The largest reef is near Australia and is called the Great Barrier Reef. It is so big that it stretches 2,600 miles long and can be seen from space.

When you look at coral reefs, you might think they are made up of rocks but actually, they're made from tiny little animals called polyps. When polyps are alive, they live on the outside of the reef. When they
